New England Patriots owner Robert Kraft officially says that he will not "take it personally" if the NFL suspends him for life for soliciting prostitution at a Florida massage parlor and eventually having sex with one of the women who worked at the salon. "I'm going to leave it up to God," Kraft told Boston sports radio station 98.5 The Sports Hub in an exclusive interview on Sunday. "I haven't really had any sleepless nights worrying about it. I will take whatever comes. I just want to be able to move on. I've made my views known. The league knows my views. And I stand by them." Kraft said in addition to the league's heavy punishment. "If there's a consequence to my actions, if I go to jail, I will go to jail. I will never accept a suspension from the league again. I'll take whatever the consequences are." Kraft has been charged with two counts of soliciting a prostitute, one count of soliciting another to commit a prostitution offense and one count of conspiracy to solicit a prostitute. Multiple women have come forward with allegations that Kraft and two other men engaged in sex acts at the Orchids of Asia Day Spa in Jupiter, Florida, over two days in early January. Kraft says he is a "dilettante" when it comes to sex. The NFL and Kraft's legal team have yet to discuss the league's punishment for Kraft, but it is expected that he would face some sort of significant suspension 0cc13bf012
