Bipolar membranes as well as porous membranes have been found to be suitable for application in organic purification/extraction, as well as in microbial/bacterial separations in the areas of medical microbiology, food technology, and biotechnology. Important factors in the design of bipolar membranes are their hydrophobic/hydrophilic nature, resulting in a membrane that is selective for only one phase. Ion exchange membrane and fast-flow ultrafiltration membranes are representative types of bipolar membranes. Porous membranes use pores that are able to provide fast flow rates, at high flux, and with high rejection. Fast-flow ultrafiltration membranes usually have a pore size of about 0.05 microns.Holy Smokes, How are things shaping up for the Flames over in St. Louis? I know this is not a tough question to answer because Calgary will be off until the morning of the first round of the 2012 playoffs and then after that things will be very busy. As it always is around playoff time there will be changes coming to the organization as it relates to the ice time of some of the top prospects such as Bill Arnold and Alex Tanguay. I have read that Tanguay is no longer in the top 6 of the team and that Calgary is looking to move one of their top prospects out of the lineup. I am just curious as to what this means for Tanguay with the Flames. Does Calgary just move him to the bottom 6 like they did with Bobrovsky and Orlov? I am assuming that Tanguay is going to be traded or released on the 5th day of t
