Unravelling the plantar surface of the foot: a review of the anatomy. Every step, every time you take your foot off the floor your heel hits the ground and yet there are so many myths and misconceptions about the anatomy of the plantar surface of the foot and how it helps in the development of plantar fasciitis. Many of the problems and symptoms people experience with plantar fasciitis can be blamed on an overly developed medial longitudinal arch, with incorrect biomechanics and by thickening the plantar fascia in an attempt to increase its resilience. Correcting the alignment of the tarsal joints can improve the biomechanics of the foot and resolve existing or potential plantar fasciitis problems. This review unpacks some of the myths around the anatomy of the foot and its importance in development of plantar fasciitis. It aims to provide biomechanics and non-surgical treatment options that can be easily implemented by podiatrists.Q: A bug in this vectorized version of `lapply`? I have a dataset of size $n_{\text{samples}} \times 10e3$ and I am trying to create a vectorized version of lapply(.) which applies the function fun to every sample within the data frame. I have the following code: `library(Rcpp) cppFunction(fun_vec = " Rcpp::IntegerVector fun(Rcpp::IntegerVector x) { Rcpp::IntegerVector y(x.size()); int i; y[0] = x[0] * x[1]; for (i=1; i`

I'm using a javascript library for generating a table with the rows and cols. Is there a way to not have whitespace between the elements, and and? elements (bootstrap grid system)? Is this a setting or something else? Edit: The problem happens only when 'display: inline-block' is used to generate the rows and columns. A: It was a matter of CSS specificity. If someone is familiar with bootstrap, you can use class="no-gutter" to declare that the display should be block (which will eliminate the gap that I posted in my question). Q: NullPointerException in MonoTouch.Dialog The following exception is thrown every time I set a value for a TextField: System.NullReferenceException: Object reference not set to an instance of an object Source: System.Threading.Tasks.Task.ThrowIfNecessary() I am using the latest MonoTouch.Dialog toolkit and this only happens when running my app under the debugger. What could I be doing wrong? I am using this code to set values in my view: `public override View GetView () { var root = new RootElement ("Root") { new Section ("Section Name") { new TextField ("Text here!", "Value goes here") } }; return root.Build (); }`

And the stack trace in the debugger looks like this: at (wrapper managed-to-native)

MonoTouch.UIKit.UIApplication:UIApplicationMain (int,string[],intptr,intptr) at MonoTouch.UIKit.UIApplication.Main (System.String[] args, System.String principalClassName, System.String delegateClassName) [0x00029] in 0cc13bf012
