What's new:

is the wife of Grand Patriarch Gregory V of Constantinople. She was martyred at Constantinople, her sufferings having been recorded by the writer Euthymius Zigabenus. He also gives an important account in his writing Life of St. Cyprian of Antioch, of the career of Ea, and of the words she repeated in her despair when she began to realize that the death of her husband had been ordered. A fragmentary account of the treatment Ea received under Nero is also in Life of St. Cyprian, which may be spurious. Early Life She was born at Antioch where the bishop Samousius is said to have been the maternal uncle. Ea's life was recorded by her daughter Cecilia, described on the latter's last page by the author. Ea was baptized by Alabius, the bishop of Antioch, and ordained to the diaconate by her uncle; but her consecration to the priesthood was delayed by her mother's objection to exposing her daughter to the persecutions of Rome. The story that she was baptized at Antioch by Alabius, and ordained to the priesthood by his brother, Nicephorus, may be an error. The records of that martyred bishop, Nicephorus, show that he was martyred at Constantinople by Maximinus. The traditional story that Ea's mother was the daughter of two sisters and the mother of a brother seems to have no documentary support. Besides her uncertain origins, there is nothing known about her antecedents at Antioch; but the time of her martyrdom is uncertain. Ea was sent to study under the Stoic philosophers, whom the Church Fathers, including Chrysostom, admire for their philosophical virtues. Leo the Great and Gregory the Great call her "of heavenly parentage." Experience with the Roman Christians (St. Cyprian suggests pre-missionary contacts) According to the Life of Euthymius Zigabenus, Ea had a mystical experience, at which Saint Jerome and other philosophers also were present, of the bodily death of a husband. In the Passion of Ea seen in a dream, the fact of the death of her husband became apparent. Capture and conversion It is said in the story

Yumori Forest is a visually stunning, action platformer with a lush style inspired by the art of Hayao Miyazaki. A very different experience, The Challenge of Lost Rulers is a story-driven adventure game in which you follow a young hero's journey in a real-time created and dynamically generated world. The quest to save the lives of orphans. User reviews Evelyn from Netherlands wrote: "Lantern Keeper is an action platformer, challenging even on the lowest difficulty, thanks to the central theme: combat. The objective is to keep the lantern lit, and as such maintain balance to the water currents that are constantly alternating. Unfortunately, the game does not hold your hand, so for a novice it will be difficult to handle. However, if you have already played action games such as Metal Slug or Contra, you will quickly fall in love with its punishing difficulty. A peaceful life in the Yumori Forest is being threatened by a mysterious gang. In order to protect the innocent children, the Lantern Keeper has the task of keeping the four lanterns lit, avoiding the traps and enemies along the way. No stone is left unturned in this threat, which will certainly test your reaction time. In order to improve your skills and gain more experience, you can upgrade your sword and shield with items found in the environment, or even make them magically appear. The story itself is quite generic, but it is not what makes this game special. When you are not fighting opponents, you are fighting with the different enemies you face. Switching between fighting and exploring the environment is a great part of the game, and increases the thrill of the gameplay considerably. Simple movements cause the lanterns to be mirrored, so in order to light another lantern, you must learn how to control them. Combined with ever-changing locations, this will provide hours and hours of fun. Finally, the soundtrack is beautiful, but should only be listened to when playing the game. Especially the fight tracks are epic, adding an extra layer of danger. Lan
